Are you thinking about or planning for a move to 3E®? At Thomson Reuters Elite, we not only know the software inside and out, but we also understand what it takes to have a successful implementation. That's why we offer our clients 3E Readiness Services. By identifying your current foundation and business operations, goals, and needs moving forward, we can help make your move to 3E faster and at a lower cost, while improving performance on your current system.

When you utilize 3E Readiness Services from the Elite Global Services team, you can be confident you're receiving unmatched experience from the market leader. Our certified experts take you through a consultative approach to ensure a firm foundation is in place for your move. During the pre-sale process, the team asks you the important questions, such as "what are you trying to achieve?" and "what have you done to prepare for the move?" The answers to these questions and more help determine your path for implementation and ensure you're on the right path to success.

Our Readiness Services consist of the following four key areas:

- Business process reviews – Understand your key processes better than ever and enhance processes based on best practices, so you can boost productivity in your current and future systems

- Prior customization inventory – Plan to simplify, automate, or eliminate current customization(s), so that you can leverage native 3E to eliminate customizations and ensure key capabilities run smoothly out of the box after you move to 3E
- Data preparation – Evaluate, cleanse, and balance current data for better performance in your current system while preparing for a seamless conversion to 3E
- Business impact planning – Plan to meet your business objectives with a proven implementation approach, identifying key resources and project governance for a successful project framework
